PROPOSALS

BY BENJAMIN EDES & CO.

OF BALTIMORE,

For Publishing a New and Valuable Work

by Subscription, entitled,

An Universal Dictionary

OF

Commercial Geography;

CONTAINING all that relates to the situation and extent of every commercial state in the world, and a comprehensive and correct account of their agriculture and products, their manufactures, fisheries and mines, and the commerce resulting therefrom—their laws, customs, tribunals and administrations of commerce—their land carriage and navigation; their banks and commercial companies; their monies weights and measures; their exports and imports; their exchange and the balance of trade; their colonies, &c. &c. arranged in alphabetical order. From the French of J. Pencet, author of the Dictionary of Police, of the Methodical Encyclopaedia, &c.

The publishers have been at great expense in obtaining the only translation, revised and corrected by gentlemen of well known talents, which will make about 15 vols. 8 mo. containing 600 pages each, dedicated to the Merchants of the U. S. Copy right secured according to law.

The work now proposed to the public may be said to be a miniature view of the commercial world, unfolding the commerce of every clime. It combines the experience of past ages with the trade of the present day. In the author's preliminary discourse and introduction, will be found a most interesting history of commerce from remote ages progressively until the publication of the work, together with the tables of the money of the different nations of the world; tables of the old and present weights, & measures of distance, surface, solids and capacity in France, adopted since the revolution, &c. &c. Therein all the intricacies and labyrinths of trade are brought into one view.

The high estimation in which the Commercial Geographical Dictionary is held in Europe, induces the publishers to cherish a hope that in their expectations of remuneration they will not be disappointed. They know not of any work in the English language on the subject of which it treats, of so general importance.

Gentlemen acquainted with the real merits of the work will be highly gratified in seeing it in English dress, to effect which the publishers have not hesitated to encounter every obstacle, and brave every expense. They are determined that the work shall be executed in a style which shall not deteriorate the character of the American press.

CONDITIONS.

The work will make at least 15 large octavo volumes, containing 600 pages each, and printed on a new type and paper of a good quality.

It will be delivered to subscribers bound in boards, at $3 for each volume, payable on delivery. To non subscribers the price will be enhanced.

It is expected one volume will be delivered each month from the commencement. A list of the patrons of the work will be added to the last volume.

Subscriptions received at this office. May 18—22.

From the Freeman's Journal.

Letters upon French Influence.

No. IV.

To the People of the United States.

Having established the point that the president of the United States has no constitutional right to impose an injunction of secrecy upon the two houses of Congress, or either of them, in any case whatever, it is now proper to enquire into the power of those houses to lay such an injunction upon their own members.

The only power vested in the two branches of the national legislature, by the constitution, which bears upon this subject, is contained in the third paragraph of the fifth section of the first article of the constitution, which article establishes and defines the legislative functions. "Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings: and, from time to time, publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays, of the members of either house, on any question, shall at the desire of one-fifth of those present be entered on the journal." This paragraph is naturally connected with that which goes before it. "Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings; punish its members for disorderly behaviour; and with the concurrence of two thirds expel a member." The provision in the present constitution respecting a secret journal, appears to have been in some measure derived from the seventh section of the ninth article of the old confederation of the states. "The Congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn at any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations, as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each state on any question shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a state, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislature of the several states."

As the old Congress possessed the powers of peace and war, with only a mere shadow of legislative powers generally, and the power of making treaties, now vested in the President and Senate exclusively, the provision which has just been quoted from the articles of confederation, appears to have been adopted with a view to the exercise of those powers upon the subjects of "treaties, alliances and military operations," and upon no other subjects. As it was the object of "The People," in establishing the new constitution, to "form a more perfect union," by the organization of a more energetic system of government, a power was given to each house to withhold from publication such parts of their proceedings as they should deem proper. But when we consider that the powers in reference to the exercise of which, under the confederation, secrecy was allowed, were divided in the new constitution, the power of making treaties and alliances being vested in the Senate (together with the President) the power of making war and providing for military operations, in both houses conjointly, it is fairly presumable that the framers of the constitution did not contemplate secret proceedings in any other case. And in what other cases than they be necessary, or consistent with the principles of our institutions? Our political system is essentially a system of publicity. The genius of it is at war with the course so commonly pursued by monarchical cabinets and despotic divans. So far as our Congress have departed from this original principle of our system, they are justly liable to the censure involved in Lord Chatham's speech on a motion for the dissolution of Parliament in 1771. "For a public assembly to be afraid of having their deliberations published, is monstrous and speaks for itself. No mortal can construe such a procedure to their advantage. It, and the practice of locking the doors, are sufficient to open the eyes of the blind; they must see that all is not well within." If this be good doctrine in a monarchy, how much more so in a republic! The question is not however, what ought to be the powers of Congress in this respect, but what are those powers? It is the opinion of some that a written constitution affords no security to the rights of the people. Let us hope that this opinion is unfounded. It is dangerous to adopt constructions of the spirit of the constitution. It is much safer to adhere to the letter. If this be generally done, and the constitution be at once correct in principle and intelligible in expression, how can it be otherwise than that it should secure our rights and privileges? Could a lex non scripta, a collection of "shreds and patches" of legislative, executive, and judicial opinions and decisions, accumulated gradually in the progress of ages, secure them better than this lex scripta, this plainly recorded law, to which all can recur, and which all can comprehend?

Each house of Congress, then, has power to conceal from the people such a portion of its proceedings as it deems improper for promulgation. But this power can only be exercised by first exercising another, that of "determining the rules of its proceedings," unless, indeed, the house shall think it more proper and take the trouble from day to day, of taking a distinct vote on every part of the journal which it means to keep concealed. No such thing exists in practice. The house of representatives has established particular rules upon this subject. It is provided that when a member shall announce to the house that he has a motion to make, the proceedings upon which, in his opinion, ought to be kept secret, the doors shall be closed, and the house shall determine, by a vote, whether those proceedings shall be secret or not. The house sometimes immediately determines that the proceedings shall not be kept secret, as in the case of a motion which was made for the sequestration of debts due by the citizens of the U. States to British subjects. But no instance is recollected in which the house literally pursued its own rule, and determined by a formal vote, that proceedings upon a motion made with closed doors should be kept secret. The house, therefore, does not, in the cases mentioned, pursue the letter of the constitution and of its own rule which is intended to carry that provision of the constitution into effect. How far, then, is the rule obligatory upon the members?

Another rule provides that when a confidential message is received from the president, the proceedings upon such message shall be secret, until the house shall otherwise determine. But nothing is said respecting documents which may be communicated with the message. These form, in fact, no part of the "proceedings" of the house, being merely matter of information to bear upon those proceedings. They are never recorded in the "journal of its proceedings," and it is only "such parts" of the "journal of its proceedings" as "may in their judgment require secrecy," that they have a right to conceal. This will lead us to the investigation of a deep question.

NEW YORK, May 31.

Captain Marshall, who arrived here last night, sailed from Gottenburg on the 17th of last month; at which time it was reported the Danes had orders to take all American vessels they should fall in with; and it was generally supposed that Bonaparte would soon have the regulation of the commerce of Sweden. A French agent had arrived at Stockholm; and another at Gottenburg. Markets dull at Gottenburg, except for sugar and logwood. Cotton was about 37 cents.

The accounts from the Havana, of the 2d instant, are of a satisfactory nature. Advances had reached that place of the advances of the French in old Spain; of their investment of Cadiz; and of the establishment of the new regency in the Isle of Leon (Cadiz) and to which authority the government of the Havana (& of Cuba) had publicly acceded, without any tumult, dissatisfaction, or despondency, among the people. It was rumored yesterday morning that the colony of Cuba had declared itself independent; but this arose from a very curious view of some Spanish papers, of considerable length received by the gentlemen to whom we are indebted for this article, and who mistook the nature of their contents. Letters of the first authority received by this gentleman state the ports of Cuba would be speedily and freely opened to the British and Americans, and the duties reduced.

Capt. Place's account therefore, in our paper of yesterday, is entitled to full credit, which states that those events had already taken place.

Captain Ellison, late master of the brig Beulah, who arrived here yesterday, has requested us to mention, that on the 12th of January, in lat. 23, long. 63, being 53 days from Demerara, out of provisions and subsisting only on bread and water for 12 days, he was fortunately fallen in with by H. B. M. sloop of war Emulous, Captain Stupart, who with much kindness supplied the Beulah with a quantity of beef and pork and politely presented Captain E. with coffee, sugar and candles for the use of the cabin. On the 12th February following, the Beulah being still unable to make a port and in great distress, was met by the French privateer La Creole, (captain's name not known) from Guadaloupe; who humanely supplied the brig's crew and captain with beef, bread and other necessities; and expressed much regret at not being able to afford farther supplies, the privateer being herself short of provisions.

We have seen a letter from Havana, from the most respectable sources, which confirm the news published in yesterday's Gazette, on the authority of Captain Place. This change will prove immensely important to the commerce of the United States.

Process Verbal.—We publish this evening a curious French document, being a process verbal for sequestrating American property. No cause, however, is assigned for the seizure.

It is curious enough to hear individuals in the city justifying this act of robbery, by saying that it is only a just retaliation upon us for our non intercourse law, which law they say we had no right to pass, because we have a treaty with France stipulating for free trade; and this law they say violates it. Do not these people know that our treaty with France has expired? Do they not know that it expired last July? But it did expire July 1809, by its own limitation. So they must find out some other justification.

(TRANSLATION.)

Process-Verbal of the placing of Seals upon the American brig Rose-in-Bloom, on the 19th of March, 1810.

On the 19th of March, in the year 1810, We, Benoit Nick's Alissee, principal commissary of war of the government of Biscay, and Jacques Blandin, commercial agent of France at the ports of St. Sebastian and Passage, commissaries delegated by general Thouvenot, governor of Biscay, for the sequestration of American vessels and the confiscation of their cargoes in the said ports, having been informed that the American brig Rose-in-Bloom, of the burthen of one hundred and eighty-seven tons, or thereabouts, which entered the road of the port of St. Sebastian on the 10th of the present month, had completed the quarantine to which she had been subjected, went on board the said brig Rose-in-Bloom, captain Jedidiah Oleott, from New York, with a cargo consisting of four hundred and twenty-four bales of cotton and fifteen tons of logwood, and in the presence of monsieur Bourgade, chef de bataillon commandant d'armes of St. Sebastian, proceeded to place the seals as follows:

We placed four seals upon the extremities of two pieces of wood, which cross from one end to the other of the third hatch, behind the main.

The two hatches which are between the two masts could not be sealed, on account of the incumbrance on the deck occasioned by the long-boats and forty-six bales of cotton, which likewise could not be put under seal. As the captain's cabin could not be sealed, and as the remainder of the cargo is deposited there, we signified (by the medium of Mr. Jean Baptiste Gonsalves, sworn interpreter at St. Sebastian) to the said captain, that he remains responsible for the entire cargo of his vessel, agreeably to the bills of lading and certificates of the French consul at New York, which he has delivered to us, as well as all other papers relative to the said cargo.

After which, we requested monsieur le commandant d'armes, to leave on board of the said vessel a sufficient number of soldiers for the guard, as well of our seals as of the articles composing the cargo of the said vessel.

In testimony whereof, we have drawn up this process verbal, which the said monsieur Bourgade, commandant d'armes, Mr. Jedidiah Oleott, captain, and the sworn interpreter, signed with us the above-named commissaries of sequestrations.

Done in the road of St. Sebastian, and on-board of the said vessel, the day, month and year before written.

Signed, Bourgade, Jedidiah Oleott, Jean Bte. Gonsalves, Alissee, and Blandin.

A true copy from the original, which is deposited with the commissaries.

FOR SALE,

At the town of Ococoquan, on the 26th day of May next, at Public Auction,

That valuable MILL SEAT,

late the property of Ellisha Janney,

SITUATE in the said town of Ococoquan. On this site was erected, about eleven years ago, a spacious three story BRICK MILL HOUSE, which ever since has been occupied as a manufacturing mill, until about twelve months ago it was destroyed by fire—the stones and bricks of the former walls, and the iron work of the building are upon the spot, and would answer for a new mill, which might with these aids be erected in time to grind the growing crop of wheat. The advantages appertaining to this valuable property, which in the driest season never wants water, being furnished by the Ococoquan river, are so generally known as not to need a particular enumeration: suffice it to state, that it is situated in a healthy and flourishing little town at the Falls of the river, about 15 miles south of Alexandria, on the great stage road, leading north and south in the heart of a wheat country—and has navigable water to the mill door, where vessels may come of sufficient burthen to carry 500 barrels of flour. With this valuable seat for water works of any description, there may be had about 250 acres of well tilled land, lying on the opposite side of the river. For this property one-tenth of the purchase money will be required in hand, and the residue in three equal annual payments, with interest from the day of sale.

THE DISAPPOINTMENTS OF YOUTH, A NOVEL.

By GEORGE WATKINSON, Esq.
OF WASHINGTON CITY,
Author of the Lawyer and Child of Feeling.

The celebrity of this author's "*LAW-and without detracting from the merits of the former, feel themselves justified in stating that his GLENCARN is superior to either.

It is submitted without further recommendation, with a view that the American reviewers may give further encouragement to this young gentleman's endeavors to entertain, instruct and moralize his fellow citizens, in a way seemingly well calculated to attract their attention.

ORIGINAL
FAMILY MEDICINES,

Prepared by RICHARD LEE & SON,
Have been in high estimation and general use throughout the United States, for the space of ten years. And, it is no inconsiderable evidence of their utility, that during the above period, numerous imitations of a very article, the productions of ignorance and experience, urged by envy and pecuniary interest, have been intruded on the public, seen for a day, and then perished! Others now succeed them, which in like manner are fast descending to the tomb of the Capulets; while our remedies become more generally used, and acquire a daily accession of deserved celebrity.

Lee's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

This medicine is superior to any verified to the public, being innocent and mild, certain and efficacious in its operations.— Should no worms exist in the body, it will without pain or griping, cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders.

Lee's Elixer.

A certain remedy for colds, coughs, asthma, and particularly the whooping cough, so destructive to children.

Lee's Essence of Mustard,

So well known for the cure of rheumatism, gout, palsy, sprains, &c. &c.

Lee's Grand Restorative,

Proved by long experience to be unequalled in the cure of nervous disorders, consumptions, lowness of spirits, inward weakness, &c.

Lee's Anti-Bilious Pills,

For the prevention and cure of bilious and malignant fevers.

Lee's Sovereign Ointment for the Itch,

Which is warranted an infallible remedy a one application.

Infallible Ague & Fever Drops,

For the cure of agues, remittent, and intermittent fevers.

Lee's Genuine Perfian Lotion,

Celebrated for the cure of ring worms, scatter, &c.

Lee's Genuine Eye Water.

An effectual remedy for all diseases of the eyes.

Tooth-ache Drops.

Which give immediate relief.

Lee's Damask Lip Salve.

Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

The Anodyne Elixir,

For the cure of every kind of head-ach.

The Indian Vegetable Specific,

For the cure of venereal complaints.
Those medicines having come into general use, they are frequently purchased not only by Druggists, but by country store keepers to sell again; in order that the purchasers may be confident they have the original genuine medicines; wherever they purchase they have but to observe, that every article of medicine has on the outward wrapper the signature of the proprietors.
